

Community Healthier Living Powwow Held at Laona High School

“Young Warriors” drum group accompanying veterans and dancers during the powwow.

by Val Niehaus

On Jan. 31, 2017, the Community Coalition of Forest County, Forest County Potawatomi (FCP) and Mole Lake Sokaogon Chippewa held a Community Healthier Living Powwow event at Laona High School. This event was for K-12 students and was open to the public.

Once the students piled into the gymnasium, Jeff Keeble, arena director for the powwow, did a bit of an introduction to the students and spoke about ways of healthy living. He then talked about his own personal history and his battle and relayed the best thing you can do for yourself is to keep off of drugs and alcohol.

Emcee for the event was Robert VanZile Sr. Before starting the powwow, he offered an invocation in his language and then introduced the veterans that were present who were carrying the Eagle Staff and flags. Young Warriors drum group opened with grand entry, which was then followed with the traditional flag song and veterans song. Head dancers were Donald Keeble and Waleli Frank. Accompanying the head dancers were royalty from FCP Winters End, FCP Meno Keno Ma Gē Wen and Mole Lake TRAILS powwows and other dancers who participated.

This event was an educational tool to show the students and the public the reason powwows are held. VanZile did a great job explaining the significance of certain ceremonial rituals and answered any questions the students had. He spoke of the different types of regalia each dancer was wearing. He also stressed, “This is not called a costume. A costume is something you wear during Halloween; this is either called regalia or an outfit.”

VanZile also mentioned the different types of dances that are present during the powwow, such as the Crow Hop and Sneak Up.

The students were asked to dance during intertribal. The younger students had a fantastic time dancing to the beat of the drum!

The most popular part of the powwow was when Michelle Reed and her son, Hunter Reed, demonstrated a bit of hoop dancing. They even had some volunteers from the crowd learning how to move the hoop around your body. Let’s just say that Principal Jim Bradley could have been a hoop dancer in another life!

Michelle said, “I promised myself that I would learn this dance, and my son Hunter took off with it right away!” He was phenomenal to watch! The younger students had many questions after watching them dance.

This event was a great opportunity for the community to learn a bit more about powwows, hopefully with a more in-depth understanding behind certain happenings that take place during it. Many of the students had a great time dancing with the dancers and listening to the beat of the drum.

A powwow can really be a healing tool in that it lifts your spirit to another place and makes you forget about all the turmoil you may be going through in life. It makes you laugh, smile and feel connected to one another.

Wisconsin Tribal Judges Association Visits Wgema Campus

The Wisconsin Tribal Judges Association (WTJA) visited Wgema Campus on Thursday, Jan. 19 while in town for the annual WTJA Conference, hosted at Potawatomi Hotel & Casino this year. Representatives from nine of the 11 Wisconsin tribes were in attendance, and toured the recently renovated Wgeththa building on campus. Judge White-Fish and his staff were also in attendance.

Fire Keeper Statue Relocated to Wgema Campus

The Fire Keeper statue, previously on display outside the Potawatomi Administrative building in the Menomonee Valley, has now been relocated outside the Wgeththa building on Wgema Campus. Marquette University recently purchased the Potawatomi Administrative building after the relocation of the FCP Legal, Gaming, and Administrative offices.

FOREST COUNTY COMMUNITY WELLNESS COURT OPEN HOUSE

Everyone is Welcome!

February 23 2-5 p.m. Forest County Potawatomi Executive Building, Tribal Courtroom, 5416 Everybody's Rd., Crandon, WI 54520

Meet & Greet Your Forest County Community Wellness Court

You asked. We listened. We are here to help.

Alcohol and illicit drug use/abuse has been an ongoing concern for many residents of Forest County. Whether affected personally or in close association, many residents have been impacted by addiction in one way or another. The prevalence of substance abuse among our community members is alarming and, likewise, the correlation of substance abuse and criminal involvement is worrisome. Therefore, the Forest County Potawatomi Tribal Court and Forest County Circuit Court have come together to create what is hoped to be a solution to this epidemic. Through cross collaboration with the Wisconsin Department of Corrections, the Forest County Sheriff's Department, and tribal representatives from both the Potawatomi and Sokaogon Chippewa communities, Forest County now has its very own Community Wellness Court.

Learn:

- What Wellness (drug) Court is and what it is not.
- How the FCP Tribal Court and the Forest County Circuit Court are working with addicted individuals to help them become sober and productive members of the Forest County community.
- How tax dollars can be saved by this program!
- About a program that has swept the country and how Forest County is joining the fight against illegal drugs.

The mission of the Forest County Community Wellness Court is to guide participants on their journey through recovery and restoration of their lives; all the while, promoting public safety and improving the overall quality of life in our community.

Supreme Court Justice Meets with Local Courts

submitted by FCP Tribal Court

On Dec. 28, 2016, Forest County Potawatomi (FCP) Tribal Court Chief Judge White-Fish hosted a meeting at the FCP Tribal Court with Wisconsin Supreme Court Justice Michael Gableman and Forest County Circuit Court Judge Leon Stenz.

Justice Gableman initiated the meeting in his role as liaison from the Wisconsin Supreme Court to Wisconsin Tribal Courts. He is interested in furthering positive relationships between state and tribal court judges after the approval of Wisconsin statute 801.54, which governs discretionary transfers from state to tribal court.

"Justice Gableman, Judge Stenz and I met to discuss many issues of mutual interest and how we can build on the positive relationship that Judge Stenz and I already have," Judge White-Fish said.

The judges covered a range of topics including drug addiction, drug courts, family law, case transfers, conservatorships, guardianships, and the difficult decisions that judges sometimes face. All three also stressed the importance of communication, coordination and cooperation between courts.

"Judge Stenz and I keep it simple: when one of us has an issue, the first thing we do is call or email and start communicating. We both respect each other's authority and jurisdiction," Judge White-Fish said. "We all have similar interests. We want to provide justice and serve our respective communities."

Justice Gableman expects this meeting is the first of many and that Judge White-Fish's and Judge Stenz's positive relationship can serve as a model for other jurisdictions around the state.

Another meeting with Potawatomi, Stockbridge and Lac Courte Oreilles is in the works for this winter.

Justice Gableman also attended and met with tribal judges at the quarterly Wisconsin Tribal Judges Association meeting this past January in Milwaukee.

FCP Tribal Members Participate in Presidential Inaugural Events

submitted by George Ermert, Martin Schreiber & Associates

Several members of the Forest County Potawatomi (FCP) Executive Council were recently in Washington, D.C., to attend inaugural festivities for President Donald J. Trump. Tribal Secretary James Crawford and Executive Council Member Heather VanZile attended several events related to the inaugural celebration. These events offered FCP tribal leadership the opportunity to meet with elected officials at both the state and federal level that have an interest in issues important to the Forest County Potawatomi Community. The tribe also participated in the inaugurations of President Obama in 2009 and 2013, and the inaugurations of President Bush in 2001 and 2005.

Crawford and VanZile attended an invitation-only event where they were able to interact with state and congress-sional members from Wisconsin. This included House Speaker Paul Ryan, Gov. Scott Walker, Congressman Sean Duffy, and U.S. Senator Ron Johnson. Crawford and VanZile also attended an inaugural parade-watching reception hosted by Gov. Walker.

While in Washington, D.C., the FCP also sponsored the 2017 Native Nations Inaugural Ball held at the National Museum of the American Indian. The funds raised from this event support the National Native American Veterans Memorial. Currently in the planning process, this permanent veteran's memorial on the nation's preeminent stage – the National Mall – will shed light on the countless Native American warriors who have given so much of themselves throughout history, and who continue to defend our nation today.

Community Conservation Advisory Meeting Held

by Val Niehaus

On Jan. 25, 2017, FCP Land & Natural Resources (LNR) held a community conservation advisory meeting for all FCP tribal members. The purpose of this meeting was to get input from community members on topics relating to forest management, forest roads, beaver management and conservation areas.

With this being the first official meeting of this kind held by LNR, there was an adequate turnout of tribal members along with the LNR staff. It is anticipated that this meeting will be held quarterly throughout the year as long as there is participation from the community and as long as that input is needed.

The meeting started with LNR Assistant Director Frank Shepard Jr., introducing the staff to the members present. Each staff member gave a brief description of what their job entails and offered ideas that they have for the future.

The most emphasized topic was that of forest management. That discussion had many tribal members asking Forest Manager Kevin Makuck many questions about what is happening on tribal forest land. This discussion was the focus of the majority of the meeting. At times during this discussion, there was talk about tribal forest roads and how they should be maintained. There was also a huge concern expressed about where vehicles/ATVs are driving within the woods. In view of the existence of sacred areas such as homesteads, dancing circles and graves, it is a concern of many that these areas stay respected and protected.

A brief conversation was held about beaver management on tribal lands. This is a controversial subject because many tribal members are beaver clan so it can be a perplexing subject for LNR to understand and demonstrated another huge purpose of having this meeting.

During the meeting, other topics came up and included talk about such issues as hunting tags and more in-depth details of forest management. Discussions of these matters reflect why it is so important for tribal members to attend so everyone has input and is on the same page.

Another meeting is scheduled for March, 6, 2017, from 11:30 a.m. - 12:30 p.m. in the lower level of FCP's Cultural Center. This meeting will continue the topic of historic and current forest management strategies and the use of hunting tags. If you have an interest in these matters and wish to have input about these subjects or have any concerns with them, please attend the upcoming meeting. (See flyer below.)
